it makes them possible

⊕ luke 1:37

In February, Frontier School of the Bible had their spring Missions Conference where I was a representative for Tentmakers Bible Mission and was one of five Frontier alumni. It was such an honor and a blessing to be able to be there as a missionary. When I was a student, missions week was a time that I always look forward to. It was a time that I got to know the missionary's, and got to know what they were doing around the world. It was great being on the other side and being able to encourage the students. I had the opportunity to share about what the Lord did during my time in Africa and what He is doing next. I had many conversations about missions and what that means for us as Christians. I pray that I was able to be an encouragement to the students.

I also had the opportunity to help with the winter gala at Frontier. There is nothing I love more than planning an event. I had so much fun working along side faculty and staff, being able to put this special event together for the students. It was a great night with entertainment, laughter and great food. It was a lot of work but so worth it to be able to give the students a great night.

As the Lord has me in this time at Frontier and Tentmakers He continues to remind me to trust in what He is doing. Its not always easy to be patient and wait on the Lord...I want nothing more then to be back in Africa..but the Lords timing is so much better than mine. I have been learning a lot of things during this time and I know that He is using this time to grow me closer to Him and the people that He has placed in my life.

The Lord has also be faithful to add new supporters to my team. It has been a joy to share about what the Lord is doing in my life and to have the Lord move people to join me on this journey. I still have a long way to go in raising all the support I need to return to Africa, but I know that the Lord already has it all planned out I just need to trust Him and be faithful to follow what He wants me to do.

Praise
