Many things to be thankful for...

While I transition back into life in Kenya, the days move past in a blur sometimes...but there are many things to be thankful for....our Savors faithfulness, His unchanging Word and all He has done in my life.

As I look back, it brings me hope for what lies ahead. He has reminded me of all things we have been through together, the many lessons He has taught me...and how far we have come from that first step of faith all those years ago. He has shown me His love through His beautiful sunsets, reminded me of His provision through tea fields and beautiful flowers and has cared for me by giving me yummy Kenyan coffee. These are just a few of His many reminders.

He is my one and only provider, protector, Father and friend....and I'm so thankful He has asked me to come along with Him on this journey. Through every trial, hill and valley there is no place I would rather be, than beside my Savior.

Thanksgiving
Day

Tis the Season...

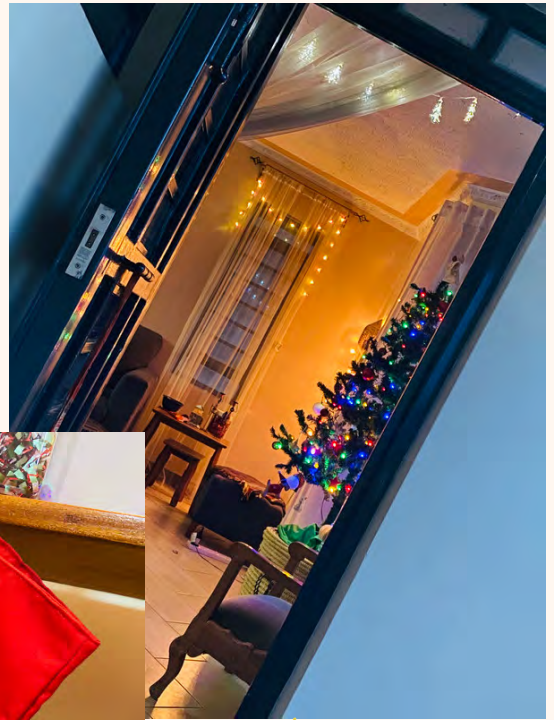

1st Thanksgiving in Nairobi

Thanksgiving felt a little different this year. This was the first time in a long time I had not spent it with family. But we had a wonderful day at the giraffe center, one of my favorite places on earth.

God always proves to be faithful and filled my heart with much to be thankful for.

Merry Christmas!

I will be spending Christmas with my roommate and her teammates in a part of Kenya I have never been before. I'm excited to see and experience another region of this beautiful country.

As we all get ready for the celebration of our Lord's birth, I pray you have a wonderful Christmas. With all we have been through this year, let us take more than just a moment to remember the reason for this season.

Jesus gives us a choice to trust in Him and have everlasting life, let us take that choice and put our faith into action. I pray you will share the story of Jesus coming to earth to seek and save the lost. Use this season to share the His LOVE with someone by sharing the Christmas story. You will be glad you did.

Thank you for your love and support, I look forward to starting a new year with you on this journey.

Because of His Grace

Love
