

Destination: Tarapoto, Perú

Thank you everyone for your continued prayers and encouragement! I'm still on my way to Tarapoto; in fact, I have raised 100% of all the start-up costs that I need. I have a ticket purchased to go in January, but I just need to get up in monthly supporters, so please be in prayer for that, I'm still currently around 40% pledged support. This is exciting, and if you feel like God may be calling you to give to support Biblical teaching to women and children, give me a holler, I would love to get in contact with you!

They're really hot and bright orange when they're ripe.

I'm doing some house remodeling work for my mom 😊🔧, and working all kinds of jobs from silage chopping to house construction (top two photos) for a sister. I was even working at a bible camp in Oklahoma. Thanks to everyone who have helped me through providing jobs and ministry opportunities! I'm so thankful to God for you!

These are awesome times we live in! My faith is being tested as I'm sure is the case for every one of you my brothers and sisters. Let's live faithfully and courageously, fearing only God and not man! Be a beacon of God's love and truth wherever you are!

Prayer Requests:

- That my support would come up, January is not too far away.
- That Delta airlines wouldn't require passengers to get the vaccine for COVID-19 (I think it might react very badly with my body, so I'm praying for God to work a miracle, especially in regard to how our country is going!)
- That I would be faithful, pray more, shine Jesus's love more, and live wisely in this corrupt world.

Here's a thought I've been thinking lately. The anger of man does not produce the righteousness of God. Mercy triumphs over judgement. These ideas come from the Bible in James. God has been working on me and teaching me about being merciful and letting vengeance be God's.

I think there is a direct connection between anger and fear, and that many bouts of anger actually come from an innate fear that God isn't in control, and that He won't punish the wicked, so a need is born to take matters in one's own hands. Vengeance is God's, let Him be the one that doses punishment out, especially remembering how merciful He has been to us! He especially knows how to administer discipline in a manner way better than we could ever imagine, and in a way that brings ultimate healing!

God bless you all!
