HELLO

Happy Valentine's Day! It's crazy to think about St. Valentine being a real person who was a martyr for Christ and how we go about celebrating the holiday today. It's really fascinating when you think about it for too long.

WHAT GOD IS TEACHING ME

I'm in the Psalms! Reading through them has been an encouragement to me recently because I find that the Psalms always give me a new perspective on prayer. I feel like the psalmists are so raw and bold. He sees our desires, our hurt, our idols... Yet he wants us to go to him in prayer. God wants us to, in our most vulnerable moments, surrender everything to him. This is so much harder for me than I'd like to admit.

CHURCH HAPPENINGS

We have been busy here at Aspen Grove! We are continuing our Grove groups where we are studying prayer and putting it into practice. We had a ladies prayer night that was very sweet!

I got the opportunity to help teach a kids club during one of our Grove Group nights. It blows my mind that God can use me. I've got so much room to grow in the area of teaching.

Me and Conner got the opportunity to take our Youth group up to Pioneer Bible camp for their Winter youth rally. It was a fun weekend of winteresque activities and learning how to trust God in hard times!

We were recently informed that the building that we are praying about went back on the market! YAY! And it has been reduced in price to a whopping $750,000.

Continue to pray for us that God would make it so clear if this is what he has for us! And for the funds to purchase it if that's his will! I am trying to organize another college and career activity for this month. Pray that God would use this for his glory and for us to get in contact with lots of people!

EXCITING NEWS

Since the last update I sent out I have acquired a new job, quit my last one, and started to play sand volleyball again! I'll be working as a Registered Behavioral Technician(or RBT as they call it), that just means I get to work with autistic or special needs kiddos helping with behavior development. While I was a little sad to quit my job at TJMax because of the connections I've made I am praising the Lord for this transition! God continues to be so gracious to me even in the little things!

Each month I get a little more excited to go to Israel!!! May 10th-22nd! In just under 3 months(Lord willing) I get to stand in places I've read about in scripture, in places that Jesus was when walked on earth! I know that it is going to be an amazing opportunity to grow in my faith and grow my knowledge of the bible! Please keep praying for God's provision and protection in this! The trip without airfare is $3950, and last time they planned this trip it was cancelled because of the war. So just keep it in your prayers. If you'd like to support me in this trip I will put the link in this email to donate through tentmakers which will come in as normal support but will go towards the trip.

~~Another relationship~~ ~~that I have been very~~ exciting is the opportunity God has given me to pour into others! I am starting to go through a bible study with two of the girls that come to our youth group, so pray for God to pour me out and use me to encourage them in their walks with him. I am also starting to meet with Whitney as well. She was one of my co-workers from TJMax. She agreed to doing a bible study with me which is so exciting! But it hasn't quite happened just yet. Pray that God will give me wisdom in all three of these relationships, and that I would be able to clearly communicate God's word with them, and pray for Whitney's salvation!

As always I appreciate you guys so much! I'm so thankful that God has put me in contact with each one of you! You are so gracious to me in prayers, support and even just taking the time to read these updates. Thank you, God bless!
